EXCAVATION WORK NEARLY FINISHED AT CALIFORNIA

Contract Apparently Not Awarded Yet For Construction of New Passenger Station at Charleroi.

The work of excavation for the new California station being built by the Pennsylvania Railroad is going along well, and soon the construction of the brick work will begin. The station is being erected to replace the old wooden structure which has done service for many years. Most of the work is being done by contract. The new station is to cost about $15,000.

As far is known the contract for the erection of the Charleroi new station, for which an appropriation was granted some time ago, has not been let. At the time the appropriation was granted, tentative plans were in the hands of the railroad engineers, but these would have to be made over. Another matter which might have been holding back the beginning of work on the local station is the trouble which the company has had in adjusting the wage scale. The appropriation for the Charleroi station was about $25,000.

NORTH CHARLEROI COUNCILMEN BEAT IT WHEN THE FIRE WHISTLE BLOWS

Forget to Adjourn at Exciting Moment and by Preliminary Rules are Still in Official Session.

According to parlimentary ethics, the borough of North Charleroi council is still in session, and will be in session until next Monday, when a meeting to adjourn is called. The regular meeting was held last night but at 9:15 o'clock proceedings was disturbed by the sudden tooting of the fire whistle and members of council "beat it" without ceremony. Some of them are members of the fire department and considered it their duty to respond. It was a false alarm but council did not meet again to adjourn.

Outside of the paying of the bills little of importance was done. A report was made that the dog tax was now over due, and the president was instructed to advertise the fact, with the warning that unless paid by August 6, dogs not bearing a tag would be killed.

QUESTION OF RIGHT CAUSES STABBING

Monessen Foreigner Seriously Cuts Fellow Boarder.

Because he took expection to the self-assumed rights of a fellow boarder to question his board bill, Jubara Kovesij, an open hearth worker of Monessen, is suffering from severe wounds about the head and arms inflicted by the boarder with a butcher knife. It is stated that when Kovesij went home this morning from work his fellow boarder began to berate him about not paying his board bill and when Kovesij told him it was none of his business secured a knife, and slashed Kovesij about the head and body. The injured man ran to Dr. Weddle's office and there swore out a warrant for his assailant who had skipped the town by the time the officers were put on his trail.

After Railways Company

Pittsburg is after the Pittsburg Railways company with a big stick, an ordinance having been passed and signed by the Mayor revoking a number of franchises. The matter will likely end in court, when the entire matter will be threshed out.

Why Coats for Men

Why a husky man, weighing from 160 upward should require the protection of a woolen outer garment in the summer time, while his fragile helpmeet is restricted to the scant protection of a peek-a-boo waist with short sleeves, is one of the unanswered conundrums of the hour, says the Akron Beacon Journal. The masculine shirt waist exploited a few years ago, was a clumsy thing and worthy of no better fate than the oblivion which befell it. Some men find a belt unsatisfactory support for their garments and they think that suspenders are immodest to exhibit, so that, even in the hottest weather, conventionally decrees some kind of a coat.

Here does conventionality mark himself a tyrant and man a "doddering idjit." To step and even to breathe in gingerly fashion for the fear of uncomfortable warmth is neither pleasant nor sanitary. Perhaps the reason why most business men deterorate physically into obese slobs within a few years is the fact that neither in summer or winter are they dresssed in such fashion as to enjoy the casual exercise of walking.

Men sneer at women as slaves of fashion. The pot certainly calls the kettle black when such a phrase is passed. Women may be slaves of capricious change but men are equally slaves to mulish inertia. If woman decided that a certain form of garment was not adapted to the weather, another form would be substituted on short notice, even if it were necessary to reveal something fully as immodest as a suspender.

Tourists Good Spenders

Uncle Sam is now annually pouring money into the lap of the rest of the world. In other words, the flow is no longer in the direction of the United States, from abroad. It is in the direction of the rest of the world, from the United States. The balance of trade on the face of things is still in favor of the United States. This is, the statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor show that we are exporting more than we are importing. Figures recently given out by the Department of Commerce and Labor showed the excess of exports over imports was $187,111,349. This, however, is an extremely small excess the lowest in recent years.

But the small balance of trade in our favor, as shown by the figures, is much more than counterbalanced by the fact that large sums of money go out annually from America which are not included in the term of exports. These sums go mainly to Europe. They consist of the following: Money expended by American tourists traveling abroad, money spent abroad to pay interest on American securities held there; money sent abroad by persons of foreign birth living in the United States who contribute to relatives, money paid to freigners for transportation.

Estimates as to the totals of these items vary widely. But it is said from good authority that from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 is carried abroad and left there by American tourists about as much more is sent abroad for interest, and perhaps $100,000,000 is sent by those of foreign birth in this country who give to relatives and friends abroad.

A Fifty-Four Word Will

The late Surrogate Church of Brooklyn, who had ruled upon the validity of man wills, left his property to his wife and made her executrix in a testment of fifty-four words says the New York World.

Courts are seldom narrow and technical in interpreting wills. They seek to determine what was the testator's intent and whether that intent was legal. Nothing more is required, unless disappointed claimants make trouble. The simplest, briefest wills, expressed in every day language, are as likely to be executed as long an elaborate ones drawn by highly paid lawyers. Roscoe Conkling's will of six words was not disputed. Tilden's was fought for years.

A will entirely written by the testator does not in all the States need a witness. It may be innocent of spelling or grammar, and scrawled on a scrap of waste paper it will be executed. It need not even be written. "All to my wife" whispered by a dying man is in some cases a legal will.

Unless quarrelsome relatives sue, a sane man's short and simply expressed will, put in clear language that has in ascertainable meaning, is pretty sure of being faithfully carried out.

WILL PAY BALANCE TO BENEFICIARY

At a session of the Orphans' court of Fayette county on Monday among a large number of orders made was one in the estate of the late Arthur J. Palfreyman of Belle Vernon, directing that a balance of $1,635.78 be paid to Joseph Palfreyman who lives at Rothwell near Leeds, Yorkshire, England. This order was made in accordance with the will of the deceased. By the will of Palfreyman, Levi J. Jeffries was made executor of the estate. When he had filed an account Martha Neff of Allegheny county, filed an exception claiming a balance of $659.82 on a sale of real estate. The objection was sustained. The balance of the estate will now go to the beneficiary on the other continent.

Infantile Paralysis Epidemic at Fayette

Three children have died within the last few days and 15 others are seriously ill with a disease the physicans call infantile paralysis, at Fayette City. The disease is spreading rapidly and unless it is checked within the next few days a strict quarantine will be established.

R. S. Coyle, superintendent of Shady Grove Park, near Uniontown is here today calling on friends. He has been having performing elephants at his park and they are instrumental in bringing large crowds to that popular pleasure resort.

The Cowboy.

I recall one picture by a celebrated artist of the day who does western things. It depicts a "cowboy at Rest." He is lying on his stomach in the sun his chin in his hands. His horse stands nearby, with the reins thrown over the horn of the saddle. Now, a cowboy in the daytime, well filled with beans and canned tomatoes, would not lie thus, and, above all, he would not leave his horse standing thus. He would pull the reins down over the horse's head and let them hang, elsewise his cowhorse would depart. I recall yet another picture of a faithful cowpuncher who with his trusty rifle defends himself from behind his dead horse, which he uses as a fortress. The dead horse is about four feet and a half through sidewise—excellent for a fortress, but a trifle wide for a thin flanked cowhorse. It would be useless to point out any detail like this to any earnest artist of today. Worse than useless would it be to suggest that a cowpuncher is the laziest created thing, for in art he must do perpetual stunts of "action."—Collier's Weekly.

Fishing Snakes

While fishing in the Fort St. George moat, at Madras, a correspondent of Country Life saw a snake fifteen inches long come out of the water with a fish in its mouth. On catching sight of the writer it dropped the fish and bolted, leaving the fish on the bank alive. On another occasion, while fishing in a reservoir near Ghaziabad, he again saw a snake emerging from the water with a fish in its mouth. This snake was about twenty-four inches long, and on killing it he was able to identify the fish as a common species of Indian fresh water fish. Later on he saw a viper, nearly four feet long, lying in shallow water. The writer hooked it ashore with his tackle, upon which the snake attacked him, leaving a large yellow fang in his fishing rod.

Consul King David.

This amusing anecdote of Lamartine is related by the Baroness Bordé in her volume of letters. Shortly after the revolution of February he wrote on the blank leaves of his pocketbook the names of his proteges and sent the list to be provided with places immediately. Previously, however, it seems he had scribbled "David" on the page and the head of the cabinet appointed the said David consul at Bremen. The postulant, however, never came forward, and, though the poet did not like being disturbed, M. Hetzel was obliged to ask who was the David on his list.

"He who danced before the ark," was the answer.

"Oh, dear! I have gazetted him to Bremen!"

"How very singular! I meant him for a subject for meditation, not for nomination. But you can cancel it."

The moniteur registered the change, but few knew that the last consul appointed to Bremen was King David.

An Artist's Mustache.

The mustache was not viewed with favor in England in the middle of the last century. An anecdote is told of the late Thomas Cooper, the English artist, to illustrate. He was brought before a magistrate in 1846 on some minor charge and was described in the police report as being "fashionably dressed, with large mustaches." The Art Journal of the date, commenting on it, said that "no member of the Royal academy perpetrates the atrocity of mustaches, a most un-English affectation." Mr. Cooper became a member of the academy a few years later.

Roused His Suspicions.

A naval officer was speaking of the extortions of innkeepers in out of the way parts of the globe.

"In Montenegro once," he said, "I asked for my bill after having slept overnight at a certain inn, and as soon as the document was handed to me I took out my purse to settle it. I did not bother to verify the various items. What would have been the use?

"But my readiness to pay amazed the landlord. He thought a moment, and then he said uneasily:

"'Will you let me have another look at that bill, sir? I think I have omitted something.'"

Hunted the Hunter.

"Is it really true," asked Miss Chellus, "that you're engaged to Mr. Richley?"

"It is," calmly replied Miss Bute.

"My," exclaimed Miss Chellus, "he was a great catch."

"I beg your pardon," retorted the other haughtily, "catcher."—Catholic Standard and Times.

STUART TO TALK FOR MR. TENER

Popular and Progressive Executive Will Appeal Direct to the People

RULE OR RUIN CROWD IS BUSY

Discontents Present Their Offering of Political Hacks and Soreheads and Dr. Swallow Delivers a Body Blow to the Selfish Movement.

The political decks in Pennsylvania have been cleared for action. The offerings of the several parties have been made. The issues in the campaign have been joined. These issues have been defined and the lines are drawn so that there may be no misunderstanding as the final result. The Democrats, largely in the minority at best, are at each other's throats over their regular nominee. They are not satisfied with State Senator Webster Grim as their candidate. They pretend to be offended at the methods employed to encompass the nomination of Mr. Grim. They protest their displeasure at the platform upon which he is standing and refuse to yield an atom in their fidelity to William Jennings Bryan and his decaying force. Bryanism is the real cause of quarrel with Webster Grim. In the convention which nominated Mr. Grim the anti-Bryan Democrats of Pennsylvania were largely in the majority and Bryan and Bryanism must either rule or ruin. The Bryan rule or ruin policy has embarrassed the Democracy of the United States for many years. In many of the States, particularly in Nebraska, it has been dug up, root and branch, and thrown upon the political garbage pile, but in Pennsylvania it is still working out its mischievous purposes and when it was unable to rule at the Allentown convention it is certain to ruin at the next general election. In their plan of destruction the Bryanites have adopted as their title the Keystone party, but from under that patriotic covering may be seen their real policies which are revenge, selfishness, and an overweening ambition for public office. The Democratic combination now officially known as the Keystone party will give no support or comfort to Webster Grim and the regular Democrats who nominated Mr Grim will have absolutely no concern for W. H. Berry, the Bryan, Keystone party candidate for Governor.

Thus the minority party, hopeless at best, enters the pending contest in an advanced state of malicious factional strife to be confronted at every possible turn by the enthusiastic forces of the party of Progress, Protection and Prosperity, advocating the principles of the great Republican party and the policies of Taft, Tener and Governor Stuart. The Republican party in Pennsylvania was never in better accord. Its leadership was never in more satisfactory hands. Its workers were never more determined upon an overwhelming victory and its candidates were never more pleasing to the people generally. If there be actual change coming to the political discontents out of the existing political conditions in the State let them take it in liberal portions. In that collection of political change it is to be hoped our friends that W. H. Berry, John O. Sheatz, W. T. Creasy, D. Clarence Gibbony and their outfit and equipment may be taken out of the political circulating medium of the State for all time to come. Individually and collectively they are sorheads, disappointed office hunters and a variety of other things too odious to mention, and their sole purpose, as they say, They represent only themselves and they are certain to poll enough votes to make a tragedy of the regular Democratic campaign and a farce of their own uncertain combination.

To a very limited [illegible] in the State the formation of the Keystone party and the nomination of its candidates, Berry for Governor and Gibbony for Lieutenant Governor, was an important event but by all odds the most important development in politics since the nomination of John K. Tener as the Republican candidate for Governor by a unanimous convention of Republican party workers is the recent announcement that Governor Stuart has indicated his desire to stump the State for the Republican nominees. Naturally Governor Stuart is anxious to hand over his conservative, sensible and wonderfully successful administration to a Republican, but he is particularly anxious to have his own administration succeeded by the several candidates who are known to him personally and who enjoy his confidence and esteem. Mr. Tener has long been Governor Stuart's champion and advocate. The candidate for State Treasurer is of the Governor's selection. He is now filling the place, having been selected out of all the Republicans of the State by the Governor to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Stober, the Republican nominee for treasurer. The other candidates on the Republican ticket are also personal and political friends of the Governor and the announcement that he will take the stump for them is the best possible guarantee of his devotion to his party and his determination that his administration shall be continued as long as his responsibility attaches. Governor Stuart, as well probably as any other man in the State, knows just what the people most want. During his own campaign he was assaulted just as his certain successor is being attacked. Then, however, the discontents and the several Democratic factions were combined in a life or death struggle for office and the situation was threatening. Mr. Stuart as the candidate went to the people. He talked with them and to them. He pledged himself and his party to a progressive, sincere and patriotic administration. The people believed him and believed in him. They elected him by a magnificent majority and every pledge and promise made to the people have been kept and redeemed. Governor Stuart's administration has been exactly what the people of Pennsylvania wanted and they have confidence that Governor Stuart will not ask them now to accept an administration which will not guarantee them the same measure of satisfaction that his own administration has given. Next in importance to the announcement that Governor Stuart will appeal to the people for the election of the Republican candidates is the following from that courageous old war horse of Prohibition, Dr. Silas C. Swallow, who has issued a proclamation against Candidate Berry who, it will be recalled, has shifted his politics and policies as often as occasion required. It will be recalled that in the last gubernatorial contest Mr. Berry made a fight for Candidate Emery, who declared that he would just as soon give money to erect a brewery as to erect a church. Dr. Swallow said:

"We cannot support a man who is a Prohibitionist in one campaign, an advocate of a candidate who puts the brewery and the school on a parity in the next and is a local optionist in the next one. Prohibition and local option have nothing in common. No, sir, we are against Mr. Berry's election, first, last, and all the while, just as we are against the election of the Democrats and Republicans and any other candidates."

"How is it that your wife is so tractable?"

"Why, I told her when we were married that she could do just exactly as she pleased, and of course she finds no pleasure in doing it."—Chicago Post.

CHRISTIANS LOSE LAST GAME; DROP TO FOURTH PLACE

The Christians lost their final game in the church league last night and besides dispensing all hope of tying with the Episcopals for first place, incidentally dropped into fourth place, leaving the Catholics the only team that even has a chance to tie with the leaders. The game was rather exciting, and while the Lutherans were able to hit Tobin safely, the Christians could only get five safeties off Miller's delivery. The Lutherans scored four in the second inning, after the side really should have been retired. With two out, an error and four hits were necessary with a stolen base to chase the runners around. The Lutherans next score came in the third inning on two hits and a sacrifice.

The Christians scored three in the sixth inning on three hits by Tobin, Heffner and Miller, two bad errors, and a passed ball. The score:

AID ARRIVES TOO LATE

While swimming at the junction of the Monongahela river and Pike Run creek, James Remmel, aged 19 years, son of James Remmel of California was drowned yesterday.

Young Remmel and a number of boys were swimming at his favorite "swimming" hole" and Remmel swam out a great distance from the shore. He was seized with cramps and called to his companions. They were frightened and lost their heads.

James Kenney was walking along the vicinity of the Vesta No. 4 mine, which is near the swimming hole, when he saw the lad drowning and jumped into the river and swam to him. He brought him to the shore.

Kenney and young Remmel's companions worked with him for a long time, but were unable to restore him to life. The body was taken to the undertaking rooms of Deputy Coroner H. T. Ghrist and prepared for burial. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

SURPRISE FRIEND ON HER BIRTHDAY

In the absence of Mrs. Wm. Richey of Lookout avenue about fifty of her friends took possession of her home last evening, where they arranged a very unique surprise for her home coming. The affair was in honor of her 55th birthday and as a token of the esteem in which she is held, she was presented with a beautiful leather rocker. The evening was pleasantly spent in social conversation after which the guests were invited to the lawn which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. There after an hour of enjoyment refreshments were served.

EXCAVATION WORK NEARLY FINISHED AT CALIFORNIA

Contract Apparently Not Awarded Yet For Construction of New Passenger Station at Charleroi.

The work of excavation for the new California station being built by the Pennsylvania Railroad is going on. At the time the appropriation along well, and soon the construction of the brick work will begin. The old wooden structure which has done service for many years. Most of the work is being done by contract. The new station is to cost about $15,000.

As far is known the contract for the erection of the Charleroi new station was granted some time ago, has not been tion, for which an appropriation was granted, tentative plans were in the hands of the railroad engineers, but these would have to be made over. Another matter which might have been holding back the beginning of work on the local station is the trouble which the company has had in adjusting the wage scale. The appropriation for the Charleroi station was about $25,000.

NORTH CHARLEROI COUNCILMEN BEAT IT WHEN THE FIRE WHISTLE BLOWS

Forget to Adjourn at Exciting Moment and by Preliminary Rules are Still in Official Session.

According to parlimentary ethics, the borough of North Charleroi council is still in session, and will be in session until next Monday, when a meeting to adjourn is called. The regular meeting was held last night but at 9:15 o'clock proceedings was disturbed by the sudden tooting of the fire whistle and members of council "beat it" without ceremony. Some of them are members of the fire department and considered it their duty to respond. It was a false alarm but council did not meet again to adjourn.

Outside of the paying of the bills little of importance was done. A report was made that the dog tax was now over due, and the president was instructed to advertise the fact, with the warning that unless paid by August 6, dogs not bearing a tag would be killed.

QUESTION OF RIGHT CAUSES STABBING

Monessen Foreigner Seriously Cuts Fellow Boarder.

Because he took expection to the self-assumed rights of a fellow boarder to question his board bill, Johara Kovesij, an open hearth worker of Monessen, is suffering from severe wounds about the head and arms inflicted by the boarder with a butcher knife. It is stated that when Kovesij went home this morning from work his fellow boarder began to berate him about not paying his board bill and when Kovesij told him it was none of his business secured a knife, and slashed Kovesij about the head and body. The injured man ran to Dr. Weddle's office and there swore out a warrant for his assailant who had skipped the town by the time the officers were put on his trail.

Pittsburg is after the Pittsburg Railways company with a big stick, an ordinance having been passed and signed by the Mayor revoking a number of franchises. The matter will likely end in court, when the entire matter will be threshed out.

Why Coats for Men

Why a husky man, weighing from 160 upward should require the protection of a woolen outer garment in the summer time, while his fragile helpmeet is restricted to the scant protection of a peek-a-boo waist with short sleeves, is one of the unanswered conundrums of the hour, says the Akron Beacon Journal. The masculine shirt waist exploited a few years ago, was a clumsy thing and worthy of no better fate than the oblivion which befell it. Some men find a belt unsatisfactory support for their garments and they think that suspenders are immodest to exhibit, so that, even in the hottest weather, conventionally decrees some kind of a coat.

Here does conventionality mark himself a tyrant and man a "doddering idjit." To step and even to breathe in gingerly fashion for the fear of uncomfortable warmth is neither pleasant nor sanitary. Perhaps the reason why most business men deterorate physically into obese slobs within a few years is the fact that neither in summer or winter are they dressed in such fashion as to enjoy the casual exercise of walking.

Men sneer at women as slaves of fashion. The pot certainly calls the kettle black when such a phrase is passed. Women may be slaves of capricious change but men are equally slaves to mulish inertia. If woman decided that a certain form of garment was not adapted to the weather, another form would be substituted on short notice, even if it were necessary to reveal something fully as immodest as a suspender.

Tourists Good Spenders

Uncle Sam is now annually pouring money into the lap of the rest of the world. In other words, the flow is no longer in the direction of the United States, from abroad. It is in the direction of the rest of the world, from the United States. The balance of trade on the face of things is still in favor of the United States. This is, the statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor show that we are exporting more than we are importing. Figures recently given out by the Department of Commerce and Labor showed the excess of exports over imports was $187,111,349. This, however, is an extremely small excess the lowest in recent years.

But the small balance of trade in our favor, as shown by the figures, is much more than counterbalanced by the fact that large sums of money go out annually from America which are not included in the term of exports. These sums go mainly to Europe. They consist of the following: Money expended by American tourists traveling abroad, money spent abroad to pay interest on American securities held there; money sent abroad by persons of foreign birth living in the United States who contribute to relatives, money paid to freigners for transportation.

Estimates as to the totals of these items vary widely. But it is said from good authority that from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 is carried abroad and left there by American tourists about as much more is sent abroad for interest, and perhaps $100,000,000 is sent by those of foreign birth in this country who give to relatives and friends abroad.

A Fifty-Four Word Will

The late Surrogate Church of Brooklyn, who had ruled upon the validity of man wills, left his property to his wife and made her executrix in a testment of fifty-four words says the New York World.

Courts are seldom narrow and technical in interpreting wills. They seek to determine what was the testator's intent and whether that intent was legal. Nothing more is required, unless disappointed claimants make trouble. The simplest, briefest wills, expressed in every day language, are as likely to be executed as long an elaborate ones drawn by highly paid lawyers. Roscoe Conkling's will of six words was not disputed. Tilden's was fought for years.

A will entirely written by the testator does not in all the States need a witness. It may be innocent of spelling or grammar, and scrawled on a scrap of waste paper it will be executed. It need not even be written. "All to my wife" whispered by a dying man is in some cases a legal will.

Unless quarrelsome relatives sue, a sane man's short and simply expressed will, put in clear language that has in ascertainable meaning, is pretty sure of being faithfully carried out.

WILL PAY BALANCE TO BENEFICIARY

At a session of the Orphans' court of Fayette county on Monday among a large number of orders made was one in the estate of the late Arthur J. Palfreyman of Belle Vernon, directing that a balance of $1,635.78 be paid to Joseph Palfreyman who lives at Rothwell near Leeds, Yorkshire, England. This order was made in accordance with the will of the deceased. By the will of Palfreyman, Levi J. Jeffries was made executor of the estate. When he had filed an account Martha Neff of Allegheny county, filed an exception claiming a balance of $659.82 on a sale of real estate. The objection was sustained. The balance of the estate will now go to the beneficiary on the other continent.

Three children have died within the last few days and 15 others are seriously ill with a disease the physicans call infantile paralysis, at Fayette City. The disease is spreading rapidly and unless it is checked within the next few days a strict quarantine will be established.

R. S. Coyle, superintendent of Shady Grove Park, near Uniontown is here today calling on friends. He has been having performing elephants at his park and they are instrumental in bringing large crowds to that popular pleasure resort.

The Picture Cowboy.

I recall one picture by a celebrated artist of the day who does western things. It depicts a "cowboy at rest." He is lying on his stomach in the sun, his chin in his hands. His horse stands nearby, with the reins thrown over the horn of the saddle. Now, a cowboy in the daytime, well filled with beans and canned tomatoes, would not lie thus, and, above all, he would not leave his horse standing thus. He would pull the reins down over the horse's head and let them hang, elsewise his cowhorse would depart. I recall yet another picture of a faithful cowpuncher who with his trusty rifle defends himself from behind his dead horse, which he uses as a fortress. The dead horse is about four feet and a half through sidewise—excellent for a fortress, but a trifle wide for a thin flanked cowhorse. It would be useless to point out any detail like this to any earnest artist of today. Worse than useless would it be to suggest that a cowpuncher is the laziest created thing, for in art he must do perpetual stunts of "action."—Collier's Weekly.

Fishing Snakes

While fishing in the Fort St. George moat, at Madras, a correspondent of Country Life saw a snake fifteen inches long come out of the water with a fish in its mouth. On catching sight of the writer it dropped the fish and bolted, leaving the fish on the bank alive. On another occasion, while fishing in a reservoir near Ghaziabad, he again saw a snake emerging from the water with a fish in its mouth. This snake was about twenty-four inches long, and on killing it he was able to identify the fish as a common species of Indian fresh water fish. Later on he saw a viper, nearly four feet long, lying in shallow water. The writer hooked it ashore with his tackle, upon which the snake attacked him, leaving a large yellow fang in his fishing rod.

Consul King David.

This amusing anecdote of Lamartine is related by the Baroness Bordé in her volume of letters. Shortly after the revolution of February he wrote on the blank leaves of his pocketbook the names of his proteges and sent the list to be provided with places immediately. Previously, however, it seems he had scribbled "David" on the page and the head of the cabinet appointed the said David consul at Bremen. The postulant, however, never came forward, and, though the poet did not like being disturbed, M. Betzel was obliged to ask who was the David on his list.

"He who danced before the ark," was the answer.

"Oh, dear! I have gazetted him to Bremen!"

"How very singular! I meant him for a subject for meditation, not for nomination. But you can cancel it."

The moniteur registered the change, but few knew that the last consul appointed to Bremen was King David.

An Artist's Mustache.

The mustache was not viewed with favor in England in the middle of the last century. An anecdote is told of the late Thomas Cooper, the English artist, to illustrate. He was brought before a magistrate in 1846 on some minor charge and was described in the police report as being "fashionably dressed, with large mustaches." The Art Journal of the date, commenting on it, said that "no member of the Royal academy perpetrates the atrocity of mustaches, a most un-English affectation." Mr. Cooper became a member of the academy a few years later.

Roused His Suspicions.

A naval officer was speaking of the extortions of innkeepers in out of the way parts of the globe.

"In Montenegro once," he said, "I asked for my bill after having slept overnight at a certain inn, and as soon as the document was handed to me I took out my purse to settle it. I did not bother to verify the various items. What would have been the use?

"But my readiness to pay amazed the landlord. He thought a moment, and then he said uneasily:

"'Will you let me have another look at that bill, sir? I think I have omitted something.'"

Hunted the Hunter.

"Is it really true," asked Miss Chellus, "that you're enguged to Mr. Richley?"

"It is," calmly replied Miss Bute.

"My," exclaimed Miss Chellus, "he was a great catch!"

"[illegible]," retorted the other [illegible] teher."—Catholic Standard and Times.

STUART TO TALK FOR MR. TENER

Popular and Progressive Executive Will Appeal Direct to the People

RULE OR RUIN CROWD IS BUSY

Discontents Present Their Offering of Political Hacks and Soreheads and Dr. Swallow Delivers a Body Blow to the Selfish Movement.

The political decks in Pennsylvania have been cleared for action. The offerings of the several parties have been made. The issues in the campaign have been joined. These issues have been defined and the lines are drawn so that there may be no misunderstanding as the final result. The Democrats, largely in the minority at best, are at each other's throats over their regular nominee. They are not satisfied with State Senator Webster Grim as their candidate. They pretend to be offended at the methods employed to encompass the nomination of Mr. Grim. They protest their displeasure at the platform upon which he is standing and refuse to yield an atom in their fidelity to William Jennings Bryan and his decaying force. Bryanism is the real cause of quarrel with Webster Grim. In the convention which nominated Mr. Grim the anti-Bryan Democrats of Pennsylvania were largely in the majority and Bryan and Bryanism must either rule or ruin. The Bryan rule or ruin policy has embarrassed the Democracy of the United States for many years. In many of the States, particularly in Nebraska, it has been dug up, root and branch, and thrown upon the political garbage pile, but in Pennsylvania it is still working out its mischievous purposes and when it was unable to rule at the Allentown convention it is certain to ruin at the next general election. In their plan of destruction the Bryanites have adopted as their title the Keystone party, but from under that patriotic covering may be seen their real policies which are revenge, selfishness and an overweening ambition for public office. The Democratic combination now officially known as the Keystone party will give no support or comfort to Webster Grim and the regular Democrats who nominated Mr Grim will have absolutely no concern for W. H. Berry, the Bryan, Keystone party candidate for Governor.

Thus the minority party, hopeless at best, enters the pending contest in an advanced state of malicious factional strife to be confronted at every possible turn by the enthusiastic forces of the party of Progress, Protection and Prosperity, advocating the principles of the great Republican party and the policies of Taft, Tener and Governor Stuart. The Republican party in Pennsylvania was never in better accord. Its leadership was never in more satisfactory hands. Its workers were never more determined upon an overwhelming victory and its candidates were never more pleasing to the people generally. If there be actual change coming to the political discontents out of the existing political conditions in the State let them take it in liberal portions. In that collection of political charge it is to be hoped confidently that W. H. Berry, John O. Sheatz, W. T. Creasy, D. Clarence Gibbony and their outfit and equipment may be taken out of the political circulating medium of the State for all time to come. Individually and collectively they are sore heads, disappointed office hunters and a variety of other things "too odious to mention," as the campaign posters say. They represent only themselves and they are certain to poll enough votes to make a tragedy of the regular Democratic campaign and a farce of their own uncertain combination.

To a very limited few in the State the formation of the Keystone party and the nomination of its candidates, Berry for Governor and Gibbony for Lieutenant Governor, was an important event but by all odds the most important development in politics since the nomination of John K. Tener as the Republican candidate for Governor by a unanimous convention of Republican party workers is the recent announcement that Governor Stuart has indicated his desire to stump the State for the Republican nominees. Naturally Governor Stuart is anxious to hand over his conservative, sensible and wonderfully successful administration to a Republican, but he is particularly anxious to have his own administration succeeded by the several candidates who are known to him personally and who enjoy his confidence and esteem. Mr. Tener has long been Governor Stuart's champion and advocate. The candidate for State Treasurer is of the Governor's selection. He is now filling the place, having been selected out of all the Republicans of the State by the Governor to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Stober, the Republican nominee for treasurer. The other candidates on the Republican ticket are also personal and political friends of the Governor and the announcement that he will take the stump for them is the best possible guarantee of his devotion to his party and his determination that his administration shall be continued as long as his responsibility attaches. Governor Stuart, as well probably as any other man in the State, knows just what the people most want. During his own campaign he was assaulted just as his certain successor is being attacked. Then, however, the discontents and the several Democratic factions were combined in a life or death struggle for office and the situation was threatening. Mr. Stuart as the candidate went to the people. He talked with them and to them. He pledged himself and his party to a progressive, sincere and patriotic administration. The people believed him and believed in him. They elected him by a majority and promise made to the people have been kept and redeemed. Governor Stuart's administration has been exactly what the people of Pennsylvania wanted and they have confidence that Governor Stuart will not ask them now to accept an administration which will not guarantee them the same measure of satisfaction that his own administration has given. Next in importance to the announcement that Governor Stuart will appeal to the people for the election of the Republican candidates is the following from that courageous old war horse of Prohibition, Dr. Silas C. Swallow, who has issued a proclamation against Candidate Berry who, it will be recalled, has shifted his politics and policies as often as occasion required. It will be recalled that in the last gubernatorial contest Mr. Berry made a fight for Candidate Emery, who declared that he would just as soon give money to erect a brewery as to erect a church. Dr. Swallow said:

"We cannot support a man who is a Prohibitionist in one campaign, an advocate of a candidate who puts the brewery and the school on a parity in the next and is a local optionist in the next one. Prohibition and local option have nothing in common. No, sir, we are against Mr Berry's election, first, last, and all the while, just as we are against the election of the Democrats and Republicans and any other candidates."

"How is it that your wife is so tractable?"

"Why, I told her when we were married that she could do just exactly as she pleased, and of course she finds no pleasure in doing it."—Chicago Post.

CHRISTIANS LOSE LAST GAME; DROP TO FOURTH PLACE

The Christians lost their final game in the church league last night and besides dispensing all hope of tying with the Episcopals for first place, incidentally dropped into fourth place, leaving the Catholics the only team that even has a chance to tie with the leaders. The game was rather exciting, and while the Lutherans were able to hit Tobin safely, the Christians could only get five safeties off Miller's delivery. The Lutherans scored four in the second inning after the side really should have been retired. With two out, an error and four hits were necessary with a stolen base to chase the runners around. The Lutherans next score came in the third inning on two hits and a sacrifice.

The Christians scored three in the sixth inning on three hits by Tobin, Heffner and Miller, two bad errors, and a passed ball. The score:
